

FACET: CALL FOR NOMINATIONS

The Faculty Colloquium on Excellence in Teaching (FACET) seeks nominations of outstanding teaching faculty from each campus for the "Class of 2010." We encourage nomination of faculty members at all ranks, including clinical faculty, librarians, and faculty members from the professional schools.

FACET was established in 1989 as an Indiana University Presidential initiative to promote and sustain excellence in teaching. Today, FACET has approximately 400 active members. At the annual FACET Retreat in May, new members will be introduced and participate in workshops and discussions with other FACET members and leaders in higher education. They will discuss and debate collegiate teaching challenges, new innovations in pedagogy, research on teaching and learning, and other issues pertaining to the educational mission of Indiana University.

FACET members are chosen annually through a peer review process. This process proceeds in stages, with nominations evaluated at both the campus and state levels. In 2010 approximately 30 members will be selected, representing all IU campuses and many academic disciplines. All full-time faculty members are eligible, as long as they are in at least their fifth year of full time faculty appointment, and have significant teaching responsibilities.

FACET is more than a one-time teaching award. Throughout the year, FACET members are involved in collaborative activities at the campus, university-wide, and national level, promoting inquiry and engagement in teaching and learning. FACET-sponsored activities include publications on effective teaching, conferences, workshops, and institutes exploring faculty leadership, the impact of technology on learning and teaching, the development and training of associate and future faculty, and still more are under development. FACET is the service-oriented teaching academy of Indiana University.

Please click on the following link for more information and to find your campus deadline and contact information:

<http://www.facet.iupui.edu/nomination.php>

Please share this call with faculty on your campus that may wish to nominate eligible faculty to FACET this year.