

What Can Graduate School Do For You?

Learn how graduate education fits into your overall career plan at a free virtual information session 4 p.m. Eastern Time on Monday, February 13. Register now!

During this educational session, faculty, staff, and students answer specific questions attendees may have about the process of applying to graduate school and share examples of successful graduate students' experiences in graduate school. The focus of this session will be increasing attendees' chances of selecting, applying and being admitted into a graduate program which is a "good fit".

Attend this session in one of two ways:

Online: View the virtual information session in streaming video wherever you have high-speed Internet access. We will e-mail you a link to allow you to view the session online and interact with speakers via a live chat feature.

On campus: View the session live in the Art and Journalism Building Room 175.

Register now for the February 13, 2012 free information session to find out what graduate school can do for you!

This program is offered in partnership with Anderson University Career Development Center, Ball State Career Center, Ball State Graduate School, Ball State Black Graduate Student Alliance, Continuum: A Graduate Student Association for LGBTQIA, Ball State Online, Hendricks College Network, IUPUI Graduate Office, IU Bloomington Black Graduate Student Association, Purdue University Black Graduate Student Association, and Valparaiso University Career Center.