

Continuing Student Scholarships & Financial Aid at IUPUI

IUPUI has long awarded scholarships to both incoming and continuing students in recognition of their academic achievement, leadership and community service. This listing contains information intended for current IUPUI students, transfer students and students returning to IUPUI. New, incoming freshman students are encouraged to read the listing provided about Freshman Scholarships on this website. Eligibility is based on academic merit, although some scholarships also consider financial need. These need-based scholarships require that the student file the FAFSA (www.fafsa.ed.gov). For information on the FAFSA and/or more detailed information on financial aid other than what is provided in this brochure, please see the IUPUI financial aid website at www.iupui.edu/~finaid/.

This list is only a partial list of general and major-specific scholarships that are available at IUPUI. We encourage you to contact your academic school and/or department to inquire about scholarship opportunities within their areas. Private sector scholarship opportunities are also a viable funding resource for IUPUI students. Try free scholarship searching databases such as www.FastWeb.com and www.Collegeboard.com.

ScholarshipNews — ScholarshipNews is a listserv for IUPUI students who want to stay informed about scholarship opportunities and information. As a member of ScholarshipNews, you will receive updates on scholarships and other information that will assist you in your college career. Find details on this website about how to subscribe.

Please note that *Asterisk indicates that the scholarship can be applied for using the general Continuing Student Scholarship application.

MURI (Multidisciplinary Undergraduate Research Institute)

MURI is a research institute within the School of Engineering and Technology, IUPUI, established to foster inter/ multidisciplinary team research. Students are selected from different disciplines to participate as a team under the mentorship of engineering and technology faculty members or researchers. Projects normally involve more than one traditional science and engineering discipline. Interested students select from and apply to projects that are defined by mentors of MURI and may work during the summer or academic year. Qualified students receive $1,500 stipend for their involvement in the projects. They can also receive independent research course credits pending the approval of their degree programs. Available projects for students to choose are posted on the MURI website normally at the beginning of fall and spring semesters. Contact: Dr. Hasan Akay, hakay@iupui.edu, (317) 274-9710 for more information.

Ronald E. McNair Scholars Program

The Ronald E. McNair Scholars Program is a national scholarship program supported by the U.S. Department of Education and IUPUI. The program sponsors undergraduate students who are first-generation, low-income college attendees and students who are from populations that are under-represented in graduate education. The mission of the program is to encourage and support these student participants to aspire to and attain careers requiring the Ph.D. This highly selective and prestigious program engages students in faculty-mentored research throughout their undergraduate careers and supports them with a summer stipend. Students may be admitted as soon as they attain junior status and may apply in their sophomore year. For more information please contact the associate director Mrs. Vicki Gayfield at vgayfiel@iupui.edu or 317-278-6101.

Summer Research Opportunities Program (SROP)

$3,000

Deadline: February 28th

SROP offers outstanding undergraduates the opportunity to conduct research during an intensive 8 week session. Students that have traditionally been underrepresented in graduate school, in their field of study, first-generation college students, or students who have a particular interest in conducting research on topics that affect minority populations are encouraged to apply for this competitive summer research program. The program gives undergraduate student first-hand exposure to the experiences of graduate school by placing them with faculty whose work is closely related to their academic interests and career goals. The summer experience includes working with a faculty mentor on a research project, attending research related seminars and workshops, attending an annual summer research conference, and networking with a diverse group of student-fellows in a variety of summer research programs. Fellows are awarded a stipend for their participation. For more information, visit the SROP website:

Air Force ROTC Scholarships

Air Force ROTC offers a variety of ways to get the money you need for school while requiring only minimal time from you as a student. But the benefits extend well beyond graduation – starting with a career as an officer in the Air Force straight out of school. Over 150 career fields are available. The Air Force currently has a high need for engineers and nurses. Air Force ROTC scholarships cover tuition, an annual textbook allowance, most lab fees and $250-$400 spending cash per academic month. The application deadline for high school students is December 1st of your senior year. There is no military commitment until the start of the sophomore year. Scholarships are also available for students currently in college. Beyond that, the benefits of Air Force ROTC are priceless:

- Take part in experiences that you'll remember for a lifetime.
- Grow as an individual and gain a sense of belonging with a group of peers who share common interests.
- Visit Air Force bases in the United States and overseas (and get paid for it).
- Take part in extreme Air Force summer adventures.
- Get college credit for Air Force ROTC courses.
- Air Force ROTC is an excellent way to complement your college lifestyle without dominating it. You'll still have time for a job, to join a sorority/fraternity, or join other social clubs.

Manage your future:

- Get management experience you'll use as an Air Force officer or in corporate America
- Secure a management level job in over 150 officer career paths after graduation
- Develop managerial skills through hands-on practice running the cadet corps
- Develop a healthy and fit lifestyle

For more information, call 1-800-IUB-ROTC or email riaweddl@indiana.edu.

Financial Aid

Students who wish to apply for financial assistance for college should fill out the FAFSA (Free Application for Federal Student Aid) ideally before the March 1st deadline to be given priority consideration for state and university assistance. Please consult the IUPUI Financial Aid website at www.iupui.edu/~finaid for details on financial aid. IUPUI administers federal and state aid in the form of Pell grants, student loans and state-based grant programs.

Americorps

Want to get paid for doing work you feel good about while earning money for college at the same time? Sound too good to be true? Call 1-800-94-ACORPS for information on this program and how you can get involved!

America Reads/America Counts

Making a difference in the lives of others can be a satisfying way to pay your way through college. Beginning at $8.50 an hour, you tutor elementary school children to read or learn math. You can even earn educational credit through Americorps while you get paid from America Reads. Bilingual tutors are also needed for the Hispanic America Reads Program. Call (317) 278-3655 for more information!

Non Work-Study — Student Employment Opportunities

Many departments throughout campus also hire students who are not eligible for workstudy. There are numerous benefits to working on campus and most employers allow for flexible work hours that are built around your class schedule. Working on campus not only saves you time, but money as well. If you are interested in employment opportunities check out jag jobs on-line at www.career.iupui.edu or call the Career Center at (317) 274-2554.

Work-Study

Federal Work-Study is one of the best-kept secrets around! Federal Work-Study is a great job opportunity to help you support yourself while gaining work experience in college. Advantages of this program include flexible work schedules built around your class schedule, work on campus or in the community, earnings exempt from Social Security taxes, the availability of many jobs in apprentice career fields, the advantage of work-study income not being reportable on next year's FAFSA form, and the positive statistics that work-study students have higher GPA's in general than other students. Working at the university or in the community and getting a paycheck every two weeks, helps you pay as you go to school. Eligibility is determined by submitting the FAFSA. See a financial aid counselor to learn if you are eligible.

What are the Benefits to Consider in Utilizing Work-Study?

- Flexible work schedule that is built around your class schedule
- Work on campus or in the community
- Earnings are exempt from Social Security taxes
- Earnings are excluded from income in calculating next year's financial need on the FAFSA form
- Gain valuable work experience to help you build your résumé
- Work-study helps to reduce student debt from loans

Private Sector Scholarship Searching

Scholarships come from many sources in the private sector such as businesses, civic, community and religious organizations. Scholarship opportunities are becoming more prevalent each year, but it's your responsibility to do the research to find them. Remember, you won't be considered for a scholarship if you don't apply. Persistence in this arena literally pays off for most students!
